Being a Person of Value

When England needed to increase its production of coal during World War 2, Winston Churchill called the labor leaders together to enlist their support. He asked them to picture in their minds a parade in Piccadilly Circus after the war. First, he said, would come the sailors who had kept the critical sea lanes open. Then would come the soldiers who had returned from Dunkirk after defeating Rommel in Africa. Then would come the pilots who had wiped the Luftwaffe from the skies.

Next would come a long line of sweat-stained, soot-streaked men in miner's caps. As Churchill painted the scene for the labor leaders, he envisioned someone crying out from the crowd, "And where were you during the critical days of our struggle?" And from ten thousand throats would come the answer, "We were deep in the earth with our faces to the coal."

Not every person can become number one – not every person can reside at the top of any profession, company, or institution. Not everybody can be "the star." But every person can be a hero, a person of value, a person who plays a vital role in seeing a greater good accomplished. Every person can make a significant contribution in whatever they do.

Let us try not to be a person of success, but let us become a person of value.

The writer of Proverbs 20:7 wrote, "The just man walks in his integrity." Dennis
